

BSA National Jamboree, 2005 Conservation Environmental Trail Luncheon, Heth HQ, Fort A. P. Hill, VA

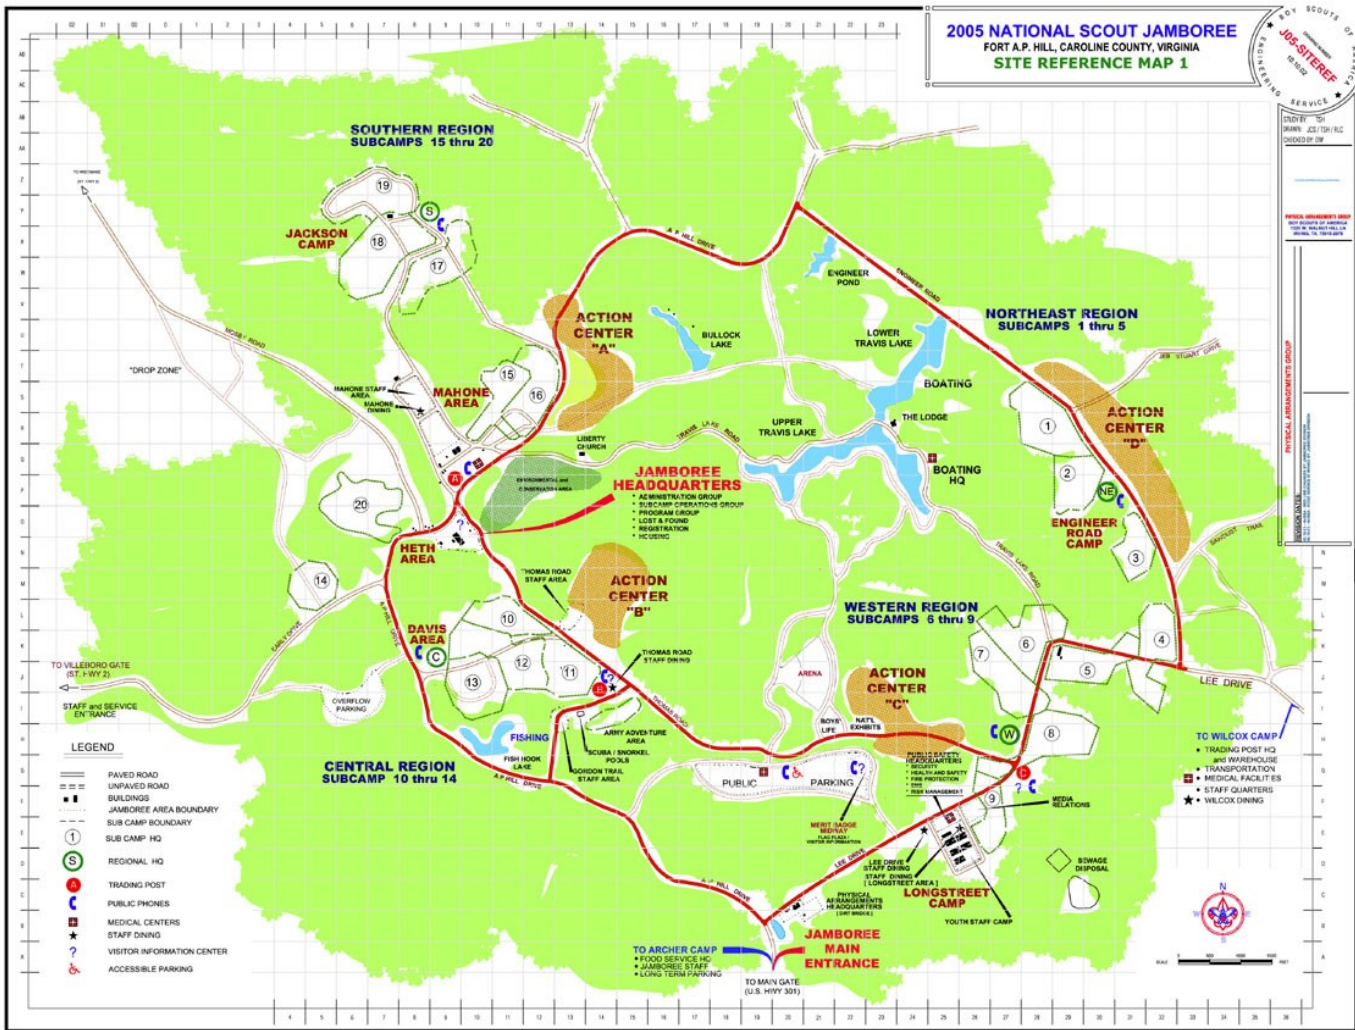

The Conservation Environment Luncheon was held July 28, 2005, at the Heth Jamboree Headquarters, as an opportunity for Boy Scouts of America and the National Conservation and Environmental Committee to thank the many conservation and environmental agencies, their agency heads and trail representatives for their outstanding contributions in support of the Conservation Environmental Trail at the BSA National Jamboree. The Trail was visited in 2005 by a record number of more than 30,500 scouts, leaders, and other visitors along the three quarter mile trail during the 10 days of the National Jamboree, with more than 20 federal agencies and public organization exhibits to visit along the way. Each exhibit featured displays and activities to enhance the scouts' knowledge of the environment and ecology. Those scouts that visited 10 or more exhibits and got their Trail Passports stamped earned and received the Conservation Environmental Trail Patch. Over, 16,000 scouts & scouters earned this patch during the course of the Jamboree (including representatives from 25 countries).

Some of the agencies supporting the trail, included the Air and Waste Management Association, the Water Environmental Federation, the Environmental Protection Agency, the National Park Service, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Bureau of Indian Affairs, Bureau of Land Management, the US & the Virginia Forest Service.

Jim Ryckman, Chair of the Air & Waste Management Association (A&WMA) Exhibit, presents Roy Williams, BSA Chief Scout Executive with an A&WMA T-shirt depicting the Conservation-Environmental Trail Patch for the National Jamboree, 2005.
